The area of Birmingham was increased from 13,478 acres to 43,601 acres. The population in 1911 was 840,202. Without the added areas it would have been 525,833. The population at the end of 1912 was estimated at about 854,000. The corporation now consists of a Lord Mayor, thirty aldermen and ninety councillors, and the city is divided into 30 wards. The water, gas and electric lighting, and tramway undertakings belong to the corporation. The whole of the city with the exception of Handsworth (which remains in the West Bromwich Union) forms one parish for poor law purposes. Application has been made for a charter of incorpora.on.or Buxton. At Chesterfield, 01 which the...
