These changes were at times very abrupt and peculiar. 4. ERRORS DUE TO MOISTURE ON OPTICAL PAR rs.--Moisture on the surfaces of optical parts in the immediate neighborhood of the spectrophotometer could seldom appear on account of the temperature difference between the observing room and the outside. Only on one occasion was moisture found on the spectrophotometer prism. Deposition of moisture upon the distant mirror would have been serious, but it was found that the shed housing the mirror was suficient guarantee against it happening. The mirror was inspected each morning at the end of the observations. While the optical flat was in use attempts were made to keep the surface of the mirror free from moisture, either by heating the shed or by directing an air current against the mirror. Heating was not permissible because of the great amount of flickering which was produced in the photometric field. The operation of a fan was detrimental because of mechanical disturbances. At that time, however, the concrete pier had not been installed. When all sorts of weather conditions are encountered at different seasons of the year, it will probably be necessary to maintain the mirror housing at a slightly higher temperature than its surroundings. 5. Emzons DUE TO Crumoes IN WEATHER CoNorrroNs.--It has been noted above how a record of the changes due to weather conditions was obtained by frequent observations at 540 mp, thus making it possible to...
